Overview:

Every year the NFL comes out with a top 100 player list that is made through coaches and players within the NFL by votes. The rankings are always released at the end of the year, and this helps teams see who is incredibly talented. This data is needed as it provides an insight for the people and football teams to see who the true superstars in the NFL are. Not only does it show teams and everyone who the best players are, but it helps people predict who will be the better teams in the following season. If a lot of ranked players are on one team this will help other people and teams know who is good. Therefore, it will also help you in the future by knowing where the players play, like their team, and their position. The position helps tell you where they play on the field, so you know if someone has a lot of good offense or defensive players.
